Discover

World Book Explains videos feature experts answering questions on high-interest topics drawn from the curriculum as well as from students themselves.

How to Do Research feature provides tutorials and exercises on 21st century information literacy skills. The student section provides a step-by-step tutorial for the research process, including how to find and evaluate print and digital information, how to organize and cite sources, and templates for research papers.

Life Skills 101—brand-new content on Discover!

Rich, interactive Life Skills 101 offers practical tips on such topics as buying and maintaining cars, applying for jobs, budgeting, arranging housing, understanding health care issues, social skills, and more. The site's user-friendly interface has clickable images that lead to the site's eight different sections. The site is packed with photographs and illustrations as well as articles that are written in conversational, accessible language to help users navigate a wide range of social and professional situations.

Key Features

- Visual Dictionary makes language accessible by displaying an image alongside the vocabulary words associated with it. Users can choose a theme to explore on a wide range of visual topics, including art, the human body, astronomy, and many more.
- Double-click on any word in an article, and an overlay box with the dictionary definition will appear.
- My Research accounts can be created by individual users to bookmark content relevant to their research, including articles, video and audio clips, and maps. Users can start their research in the library, save it, and access it from home.
- Citation Builder creates a citation after you enter such criteria as author's name, date of publication, and type of medium. These citations are given in MLA, APA, and Harvard citation formats.
- Any of the content can be translated into the 31 languages available on the site.
- Correlations to Common Core, state, and provincial curriculum and achievement standards make Discover ideal for classroom work, homework, projects, and general reference inquiries.
